Another Gen-Ed course requirement assignment I did was a research paper for my AH-2910-1 History VA Paleolithic-Gothic course.

When it comes to what the topic and length of this research paper was, that would be at least eight pages where the topic that I chose to talk about was discussing the difference between Minoan and Mycenaean Architecture. For how I approached it, I first talked about what Minoan and Mycenaean Architecture both specifically were with an overview. From there, I went on to talk about each one in detail by presenting a lot of different things and factors associated with each one with then going on to discussing the many differences there were between the two. With all of that, I also presented a lot of different works and figures associated with each of the periods in my paper as well.

For what I ended up learning from this assignment, that would be how to write a research paper with the overall process of approaching everything in a certain kind of way through coming up with a topic, doing research on it, and writing about it with presenting all of my points and using all of my sources in supporting them.
